LEONIE.

Sweet! 'tis off her hazel eye,
This soul of mine doth penetrate,
And her soft bosom's gentle sigh,
Will my deep love perpetuate.
The type of heaven serenly dwells
In her deep heart's sequestered cells.
My fair, but ah, why do I say
My fair—when she is none of mine?
I've gazed into her eyes lo-day,
And wished for me alone they'd shine.
That eye is dark—go see it well!
Portrayed in that of the Gazelle.

Go read upon her joyous face,
The love reflected from her heart,
And down its rosy surface trace
The soft sigh of her soul a part.
O I could live beneath her smile,
And think 'twas Eden, all the while.
How richly clusters o'er her brow,
The suborn tress of her hair;
And in her bosom—pure as snow,
Sweet virtue reigns an Empress there.
To thee I bow, most perfect one,
Who art my spirit's guiding sun.

THE BROKEN ROSE.

OR A LIE OF FEAR.

I was visiting my aunt Mary. I was named for her, and she took a great interest in me, I was anxious to do all I could to please her. She was a great favorite among the children.

One day, Kate Ray, who lived at the next door, came in to see me. The little puss was in the parlor, and we had a great frolic with her.

By-and-by I held her up to catch a fly on the window; and it was quite funny to see her try to pounce on it. On the sill was a new blown tea rose, which aunt Mary thought a great deal of.

"Take care," said Kate, "or puss may jump on it; and then!" But I thought more of the fun, when suddenly she made a spring at the fly, and snapped the stem of the beautiful rose.

"What will your aunt Mary say?" cried Kate. "Oh, dear! We raised it up and tried to make it stand, but it kept toppling down; at last, we made it lean against a branch, and it looked almost as well as before. I must go now," said Kate, for there was no more fun for us.

"Had I better tell aunt Mary, or let her find it out?" I asked myself.

"Tell her certainly," said a voice within; "when an accident happens, always make it known to those who ought to know it; why not?"

But I was afraid and kept delaying, and went off to grandmother's room; then she told me how to fix my patch work; and so the time passed on until afternoon, when a lady and her little daughter came to see aunt Mary, and I was called into the scolded.

"Ah, that rose!" thought I; but go I must. I had not been in long when the flowers were talked about, and aunt Mary got up to show them her tea-rose.

"Why, it is faded, broken!" she said. "How did this happen? Mary, do you know anything about it?"

I felt frightened, and answered quickly, "No, ma'am."

No sooner were the words out than I began to feel bad indeed. "Worse and worse," I said to myself. "Why did I not say the truth and did it? Why didn't I tell the truth about it?"

Now, I new perfectly well that aunt Mary would neither have scolded nor fretted, for I did not mean to do it. I had not been so careful as I ought to have been, but she would have forgiven me; my sin was that I had told a lie.

Aunt Mary liked to have things accounted for, so she asked every one in the house about the broken rose; nobody could tell how it was done. Pussy could not tell, and I was afraid to, and now doubly afraid lest she should ever find it out.

The idea of being caught in an untruth, and by aunt Mary, too, who was so truthful herself and so very kind to me, was dreadful. "What shall I do?" I cried; "where shall I go? I wish I had not come here; and I thought I was going to have such a beautiful visit!"

I had no appetite for supper; my head ached, and my heart beat hard. When aunt Mary kissed me for the night, and said, in her sweet way, "Good-night, my dear child," I felt as if I wanted to fall down and die.

Two days passed away. On the third, I went up stairs to put on my things to take a walk with grandma; it was in the forenoon. While I was dressing, the front door opened, and Katie Ray's voice was heard in the entry. All my fears came back fresh upon me.

"She'll tell! she'll tell!" what a tumult I was in!

Presently my name was called. I'm found out!" I cried; and without knowing exactly what I did, I ran and hid in the Turkey is not much of a country for drink; but it appears that France and Russia have been very nearly quarrelling over their Porte.

Humbug—the great source of all our eloquence. Drive hunting out of the market, and our Senators would be struck as speechless as statues.

A tree was blown down lately by a strong newspaper pull. The roof of the printing office suffered much damage at the same time.

A modern writer discovered that the human hair is a vegetable. He does not say how it should be cooked.

The Boston Atlas in the account of riot, says: "The Irish maintained their ground retreating inch by inch!"

The words of the widow of Belvedere to Napoleon are worth remembering: "You cannot conceive how much happiness can be found on three acres of land."

A nurse, wishing to give a very polite answer to a gentleman who inquired after the health of a sick baby entrusted to her care, said, "Oh, sir, I flatter myself the child is going to die."

A clergyman, being complained of by another for drawing away parishioners on Sunday, made this reply—"Feed your own flock better, and they won't stray!"

Plant a tree—train a vine—foster a shrub—deposit a flower-seed, and nature its blossom—paint the fence—"slick up" the yard—fix the sidewalk—in short, give heed to the little things that constitute the grand aggregate of public beauty.

A lady in Calcutta asked a colonel for a mango, and as he handed her one, it rolled into a plate of kiss-miss—specie of grape. "How natural," observed the colonel, man goes to kiss-miss."

Treasors in a Poodle.

The following from a foreign paper, is a most remarkable dog story. True or not it is a capital illustration of the suspicious nature of tyranny:—

"The severity of the Roman police has even gone so far as to take notice of a little dog, belonging to an English lady, who was taking a walk in the Villa Borghese on Saturday. The lady had taken a sprig of myrtle from a tree and twined it round her favorite's neck; after finishing her walk, on coming to the gateway to meet her carriage, her servant was precipitately ordered, by some police officer, to take the green wreath from the dog's neck—an order which the lady immediately directed her servant to comply, supposing that no flowers or plants were allowed to be abstracted from the villa; but she was not a little surprised when, on inquiring from her servant whether that really was the motive of so uncourteous an act, he gave her to understand that the dog was white, his tongue red, and the wreath green, thus completing the Italian tri-color, and rendering the unconscious little favorite a canine-revolutionist."

LARGE ROBBERY—THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS LOST.—One of the brokers of our city, M. Gilbert, of the firm of McKinney & Gilbert, of Third street left the city on Saturday last for Indianapolis, for the purpose of transacting some business operations at that place. On the way he met a man Mr. B., of this city, to whom a sort of acquaintance was sprung. Mr. B. told Mr. Gilbert, he was going to Lafayette, and was told that he, Gilbert, was bound for Indianapolis. At Indianapolis Gilbert transacted his business, received from a partner there $3,500 in notes, which he deposited in a carpet bag, took the omnibus and rode down to the depot of the Indianapolis and Eaton railroad. There he met his acquaintance, Mr. B., who informed him that he had concluded to go back to Cincinnati by the way of Eaton. There was nothing in the previous conduct of Mr. B. that led to any suspicion in the mind of Mr. Gilbert that he was wanted, and he evinced a cordiality toward him the same as he would toward any gentleman. After the cars had got underway, Mr. Gilbert went out on the platform to smoke a cigar, but when he obtained a position so that he could have an eye upon his carpet bag, which hung over his seat in the car he had selected.

On finishing his cigar and retiring to his seat, he found his friend stretched out at full length, with his head resting on his carpet bag, whereupon he said, "you appear to be taking it easy," at the same time taking the article and hanging it upon the hook from whence Mr. B. had removed it; after that, and during the time the cars were making their way to Dayton, Mr. Gilbert had his treasure under his own eyes, and when he arrived there he took it in his hand, and proceeded to the Phillips House. On registering his name, he handed the clerk his bag, and on opening his bag, he found his money was gone, that he had been robbed of his package containing $3,500.

Suspicion soon abhored upon his traveling companion, who did not exhibit much surprise when Gilbert informed him that he had been robbed of his goods.

down to the city yesterday, and he underwent an examination, but nothing was elicited that could fix the guilt upon him, and he was discharged.

There was nothing found upon the person of Mr. B. nor in his trunk, which he sent down from Indianapolis by Adams' & Co.'s Express, that could be taken as evidence of his guilt, although the circumstances are strongly against him.

Why it is that men will travel thus unguarded with such treasures, when they can send it at such a trifling expense, is certainly very strange.—U. S. Enquirer.

Agricultural.

The Thrifless Farmer.

He has more stock than he has the means to keep well.

One half of the little he raises is destroyed by his neighbors' cattle.

He plants a few fruit trees, and his cattle forthwith destroys them. He has no luck in raising fruit.

He has no sled for his firewood, consequently his wife is out of humor, and his meals out of season.

Manure lies in heaps in his stable, his horses are rough and uncircum, and his harness trod under their feet.

He grazes his meadows in the fall and spring, by which they are generally exhausted, and finally ruined.

His fences are old and poor—just such as are to let his neighbor's cattle break in to his fields, and teach his own to be unruled.

He forgets that in undertaking to save five dollars in seed, he cheats both himself and his land, and loses twenty dollars in hay and pasture.

He neglects to keep manure from around the sills of his barn—if he has one—by which they are prematurely rotten, and his barn destroyed.

Somebody's hogs break in and destroy his garden, because he had not stopped a hole in the fence that he had been intending to stop for a week.

He is a great borrower of his thrifty neighbor's implements, but never returns the borrowed article, and when sent for, it can't be found.

He sells or skins over the surface of his land until it is exhausted, but never thinks it worth while to manure or clover it. For the first, he has no time, for the last, he is "notable."

The thrifless farmer provides no shelter for his cattle during the inclemency of the winter, but permits them to stand shivering by the side of a fence, or to lie in the snow, as best suits them.

His bars and gates are broken, his buildings unpainted, and the boards and shingles falling off, he has no time to replace them. The glass is out of the windows, and the holes are stopped with rags and old hats.

His plow, drag, and other implements, lie all winter in the field where last used; and just as he is getting in a hurry the next season, his plow breaks because it was not housed and properly cared for.

He buys more land when he ought to buy more manure, or he puts out his money in some joint stock company, to convert sunshine into moonshine; or he buys shares in some gold or lead mine, forgetting that his richest mine is in the barn-yard.

To Our Parents.

We owe you an explanation, for giving you but half a sheet this week. One of our hands left us without cause or provocation, on the first of last week, but with out excuse; and now our only remaining hand is down with the measles. So you see, we are entirely short; and of course we cannot do all the job work rolling, and the paper by ourselves. During the coming week, we expect that our hand will be "right side up," when we will resume the issue of the Post. On Wednesday, the 13th of July, we will issue the next number, dropping only one week. We do hope our patrons will be as the; have always been, indulgent to us in our difficulties.

It will be remembered that in our last issue, a pretty severe article from one "Perick, J.," castigating a certain party from Woodford county, who passed through that place, en route to the Mammoth Cave. The party returned on Monday last, and, upon reading the article, got terribly angry. They demanded the author of us, and we understood they were going to do a heap of things to him, not laid down in the books under the head of "law and order." Now the gentleman who is responsible for the article not being in town, our only recourse was to stand responsible; this we told them. Whereupon they demanded the authority for writing the portion of the article in reference to the lady and gentleman kissing, (there was but one of the couples accused of this,) and we presented the gentleman in pro persona to them. Then there was every sign of "things mixing," in other words, there was a good prospect of a general muss, but none occurred, and we were glad of it; for we do like peace and harmony, and despise discord and fighting; that is where it is not absolutely necessary.

We are requested to say that there were several gentlemen seated before the Lebanon Hotel, at the time the company passed through, and that the proprietor of said Hotel, (Mr. James H. Kirk,) states that the lady in one of the buggies had her bonnet turned over her face, and her face turned away from him; and that the gentleman in the buggy with her, leaned forward and either kissed her, or attempted to do so. He also states that the lady appeared to be disgusted with the conduct of the gentleman, and that he stated the same then and there to those around. We will further say, that several of the gentlemen of our town who were cognizant of the affair were absent on Monday and only returned late in the evening.

DR. GEOHEGAN'S

EXTRACT OF HYDROPIPER,
For D. spesia, Scrofula, and all impurities of the blood.

Prepared by one of the Faculty.

THIS vegetable remedy which is now spreading to all parts of the country, is prepared by a graduate of one of the first Medical Schools in the west; a physician of high standing in his profession, and as much opposed to empiricism or quackery as any one can be, is shown by the fact that the recipe is published, and each bottle of the medicine is thus exonerating it from the charge of being nostrum.

It is prescribed by Physicians, as will be seen by reference to the Circular and the accompanying circulars.

Unlike Sarsaparilla the Hydro-PIPER is quick in its action, the first bottle often producing wonderful results, as in the case of the negro girl of Mrs. Simmon's, of Louisville, who was relieved of

Blindness in One Week!!

In short, it has excited the wonder and admiration of all who have used it, and wherever known stands at the head of all remedies for the following diseases:

Dyspepsia, Scrofula, White Swelling, Mesenteric Diseases or Negro Consumption, &c., Scurvy, Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, &c., Ulcers, and all Cutaneous or Skin Diseases, all female irregularities and obstructions, Mercurial Diseases, Secondary Syphilis, General Debility, and all disorders arising from impure Blood and bad habit of System.

For Female Complaints

this remedy stands unrivaled. Its effects are wonderful. It is a slight stimulant and a powerful tonic and alterative.

As a balsom of the complexion, in the cure of pimples and blotches, in producing a clear and beautiful skin, it is much more safe and sure, and remedy than all the cosmetics and lotions in existence. Try it, and you will never regret it. Do not lose confidence if it should seem at first to increase the disease—the general effect of the medicine being to drive all impurities to the surface, and by that means out of the system.
